MCKINLEY AND HOBART.

For once, fate played no trick upon public expectations, and the thing anticipated was the thing that came to pass. Major McKinley was nominated on the first ballot, and the proverbial slip betwixt the cup and the lip did not happen. The great apostle of protection is the candidate of the Republican party for the Presidency of the United States.

His personal popularity and the good work of his managers carried him through triumphantly. It was so certain from the beginning that Mc-Kinley would be nominated that interest in the convention centered on the platform. Protection was indorsed and recommended with more than the usual vigor of a Republican convention, but it was found impossible to place any question ahead of the money question as an issue. The eastern delegates were so united and determined in favor of the single gold standard that it carried the day.

It has become the accepted doctrine of the national Republican party, and, of course, embodies the wisdom of a majority of the convention. It has been officially decided that the free coinage of silver, except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world, would ruin the country, and we are under the strictest of party obligations to believe it. Senator Teller and his followers bolted the convention because they could not or would not give up their faith in bimetallism. They were wrong. Even if they did believe that the single gold standard was a very bad thing for their States and the rest of the country, they should have preferred the unity and glory of the Republican party to paltry considerations of lucre. When a party has made such a superb record as the Republican party has written in the history of this country, it is a perilous thing to assume that it can go wrong on such a matter as the money question. It would have been much better for the country if Teller and company had practiced a little humility to the extent of admitting that when the majority decided against them the majority must be right. It is true that Mr. Teller has studied the currency question for 20 years, and is probably sincere—sadly sincere—in his errors; but men like Mr. Platt of New York city, and Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, who led the fight for the single gold standard, know what is best. They are in close touch with the wealth of the country, and realize the fact that the bullion in a silver dollar is only worth about half a dollar in gold. They fear that under free coinage it would be worth less, having nothing behind it except the declaration of the United States that it was a dollar, and legal tender for 100 cents.

The people of Missouri are for sound money, and now that our party has decided that sound money is gold it seems reasonable to believe that the Republican party will carry the State by 40,000 or 50,000 majority.
The Democrats at Chicago will probably declare for gold and silver as standard money, and that will ruin them in this State, where the intelligence of the people will lead them to see the absurdity of upholding money that is not as good in London as in St. Louis. Gold and silver together would be a purely American and Asiatic money; whereas we need international money. Even if we should have less of it, we would have the proud satisfaction of knowing that the most enlightened nations of the earth, like England and Germany, would not discount it a cent.

Upon the issue of protection and the single gold standard, McKinley and Hobart take their stand, and the vast business interests of the country will elect them with ease.

The northeast is enthusiastic for gold, the western farmers are clam-oring for protection against the pander labor of Europe, and dread the cheap goods of free trade England, so that our prospects for success in November are of the brightest. The more the people who live west of the Alleghany mountains investigate the single gold standard the better they will like it, and readily reach the conclusion that what is good for the governments of England, France and Germany must be necessary for us.

McKinley and Hobart are the standard bearers of the great majority of thoughtful American patriots.

THE MONEY PLANK.

The money plank of the platform adopted at St. Louis last week reads as follows:

"The Republican party is unreservedly for sound money. It caused the enactment of the law providing for the resumption of specie payments in 1879; since then every dollar has been as good as gold. We are unalterably opposed to every measure calculated to debase our currency or impair the credit of our country.

We are, therefore, opposed to the free coinage of silver except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world, which we pledge ourselves to promote, and until such an agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved. All our silver and paper currency must be maintained at parity with gold, and we favor all measures designed to maintain inviolably the obligations of the United States, and all our money, whether coin or paper, at the present standard, the standard of the most enlightened nations of the earth."

This is much more explicit than the declarations made by the Republican party at Minneapolis in 1892.
Four years ago the money plank was something of a straddle; now it is plain and direct. The money plank in 1892 was as follows:

"The American people, from tradition and interest, favor bimetalism, and the Republican party demands the use of both gold and silver as standard money, with such restriction and under such provisions, to be determined by legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parity of values of the two metals, so that the purchasing and debt-paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, gold or paper, shall be at all times equal. The interests of the producers of the country, its farmers and its workmen, demand that every dollar, paper or coin, issued by the government shall be as good as any other. We commend the wise and patriotic steps already taken by our government to secure an international conference to adopt such measures as will insure a parity of value between gold and silver for use as money throughout the world."

There is nothing ambiguous about the Republican party's present position on the currency question. The party favors the existing gold standard because it is the standard of all the great nations of Europe with which we trade. If the free coinage of silver could be secured by international agreement, the Republican party would sanction it, but until such time as England and some more of the leading commercial nations agree to it, the people of the United States must accept the gold standard.

This country is too poor, too much in debt, and too much in need of borrowing money, to afford to coin any more silver money. Americans could not pay interest on their foreign debts in silver, which is regarded as being only fit for subsidiary coinage in Europe. All creditors nowadays stipulate for gold. It is the only international money.

A DINNER was given by the Lord Mayor of London at the Mansion House, one night last week, to the prominent bankers of the city. The Right Hon. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, chancellor of the exchequer, who was the principal guest, made a speech in which he defended the gold standard, upon which, he asserted, the gigantic fabric of the country's credit rested. Sir Michael advised the bankers to propagate their views so that the cotton operatives of Lancashire and the half-ruined farmers in the south of England should not be led away by bimetallic theories. Our new Republican platform opposes the free coinage of silver except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world, and it is safe to say, in view of the opinions of the British chancellor of the exchequer, that England will adhere to the gold standard. The cotton opera-
gland are, without a doubt, the victims of free trade, but if they should adopt bimetallic theories the credit of their country would be lost, and they would be worse off than ever.

A press dispatch from Detroit, Mich., dated on the 19th inst. says:
"The Tribune, one of the oldest daily newspapers in the West, and the leading Republican paper of Michigan since the birth of the party, unequivocally repudiates the action of the Republican national convention in declaring absolutely for the gold standard as against bimetalism.
It says that while the party's candidate is all right, 'the platform on the only important issue before the country is damnably unpatriotic and un-Republican. No one's Republicanism can be impugned if he continues to stand squarely on the national and State platforms of the past, and if he repudiates utterly the false and un-American fulmin-ation of St. Louis conspiracy,' and advises active campaigning against 'gold monometallism congressional candidates.' We are satisfied that the Detroit Tribune is taking a course that will bring grief to the hearts of many Michigan Republicans who will naturally feel that the ticket should be supported without any regard to what the platform says. The platform may be distasteful to some Michigan Republicans, but they ought to trust in the wisdom of our noble party, and bow their heads in submission. If there are any Republicans in Missouri who do not cordially embrace gold monometallism at present, they will come to believe in it when the campaign of education enlightens the voters.

As late as the day before McKinley was nominated, the correspondents of the eastern newspapers were sending out specials from St. Louis to show that Reed was still in the race. It is impossible to believe that they did not know better, but it was considered necessary to flatter the prejudices of the eastern States.
From the beginning of the contest for the Republican nomination to the morning of June 18 the people of New York and Massachusetts refused to believe that Maj. McKinley was the popular favorite that he proved to be. Now they know it, and are supporting him heartily.

Two days before he was nominated for the Vice-Presidency, Garret A.
Hobart was made an L.L.D. by Rutgers college. The honorary degree was conferred in time to bring good luck.

The St. Louis Republic has made arrangements to cover the political news of all parties in the coming campaign in a way that has never

FILES!
How many suffer torture day after day, making life a burden and robbing existence of all pleasure, owing to the secret suffering from Files. Yet relief is ready to the hand of almost any one who will use systematically the remedy that has permanently cured thousands. SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is no drastic, violent purge, but a gentle assistant to nature.

CONSTITUTION SHOULD not be regarded as a trifling ailment—in fact, nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels, and any deviation from this demand paves the way often to serious danger. It is quite as necessary to remove impure accumulations from the bowels as it is to eat or sleep, and no health can be expected where a constive habit of body prevails.

SICK HEADACHE!
This distressing affliction occurs most frequently from the disturbance of the stomach, arising from the imperfectly digested contents, causes a severe pain in the head, accompanied by nausea and vomiting. It is in this condition that it is popularly known as 'Sick Headache,' for the relief of which TAKE SIMMONS'
